Genesee Land Trust presentation discusses valuable local wetlands

Submitted to The Post

Genesee Land Trust is proud to announce that Carol and David Southby will present at the Penfield Library, 1985 Baird Road, on Wednesday, April 16 at 7 p.m. The event is open and free to the public. Registration begins at the library on April 2. For more information, please call Margaret Potter with the Genesee Land Trust at 585-246-2130.

Carol and David, formerly of England, have been Penfield residents for decades. Both are members of the Genesee Land Trust, which is the local land and waterway preservation organization. Both are naturalists, with Carol being the president of the Butterfly Club and David being a gifted nature photographer. Over the years, they have given to Genesee Land Trust -- home to the Hipp Brook Preserve in Penfield - and have devoted their volunteer time to all of GLT's ventures.

The Southbys will show photos and explain the importance and beauty of wetlands protected by Genesee Land Trust - this includes Hipp Brook Preserve, a Class 1 wetland right in the center of Penfield, and the wildflowers, birds, frogs and butterflies found there. There will be time for questions and answers. This event is free and open to the public. RSVP is requested but not required to info@genesee-landtrust.org.
